Their mother fair Has gathered to her breast, The robes that troubled in the air

The robes that troubled in the day,
No longer rest
Upon the noble stalwart forms,
Which stood in proud array through many years,
And bravely hattled with the howling storms
Of winter, recking not of human tons and cares. Back to the parent spring
Life-waters leapt—
Nor dared to stay or cling,
While o'er all erept
The sleep that bath Old Nature's form embraced,

And hug'd it to a deep and still repose;
"Till Spring with all her fairy hounds hath chased
Old Winter to the dwelling of eternal mows. While here the blast
Sweeps by, and leaves
Are slowly rustling past,
My spirit deeply grieves,
As gazing sad and wildly 'round,
I see the emblems of this uncertain life,
In dark confusion sleeping on the ground,
And wonder why we yeild ourselves to useless strife.

We willing subjects prove
To sins deep sway;
And seem to love,
To chase the hours away—
On follies brightly gilded, luring wing,
Listening to the song of pleasure's bird,
Not dreaming that each music tone's a sting,
We seek, still seek, to eatch each note chheard.

Until within the grave Of years by-gone;
We safely gathered have
Each wild and thrilling tone—
And then we set, and madly weep upon the brink,
O'er wrecked hopes and long departed jays;
But when again the fairy comes, with sparkling cup we drink,
And still more madly cling to her deceptive toys.

Shocking Murder Trial at Boston.

Daniel H. Pearson was put on trial in Cambridge, on Tuesday, charged with the murder of his wife and twin children, at Wilmington, Mass., in April last. He is on trial for the marder of the wife first. It was a borrible tragedy; the woman was discovered covered with wounds, and a bloody knife in her hand, evidently placed there after death. A quantity of coarse black hair, similar to Pearson's, was found in the other hand. The children were found covered with blood, one with six, and the other with five stabs in the neck. The prisoner is said to have been the victim of a cruel hoax, concocted by some villains, who had represented that his wife was false to him.

The first witness called was Nathan Pearson, the father of the prisoner. He had been to visit the deceased the night previous, when she was alone with her children in bed. The next morning, hearing an alarm, he went and found them murdered as above. Prisoner provided for deceased, but was seldom at the house. The prisoner said something several years ago about a separation from his wife, but not much.

The witness was treated with great delicacy by both sides, in consequence of his peculiar situation as a father testifying against his son on a charge of murder.

The prosecution takes the ground that Pearson came after the father left, and committed the murder, and will endeavor to show that he was seen in the vicinity next morning. The effort of the murderer they say, was to make it appear, the woman had committed suicide after killing the A couple of bloody papers were found on the table, one of which said : "Martha-Your proposition I consent to, that is to give you six hundred dollars, and part, and you are at liberty to marry when you please.

"(signed)

D. H. PEARSON." (signed)

A dispatch from Boston, Feb. 27, says: "The defence in the case of Pearson, on trial for the murder of his wife and two twin children was reached to day. The prisoner's counse con-tend that the mind of the accused is not sufficiently balanced to be accountable for any crime that he may commit. It is stated that insanity has run through the family, and that he has lacked intellect since he was a boy."

efficacious preparation for nourishing, strengthening, and increasing the growth of the Hair has now acquired its celebrity and sale through the recommendations alone, of those who have used it, and been really benefitted by it. There never was Pomade introduced so deserving of being known and recommended. From its emollient qualities it is unrivalled, as a restora tive of the hair, and as an essential to the toilet for nourishing and beautifying the Hair, promoting its growth, and preventing its falling of or rining grey.

It expels all scurf or dandruff, and other imparilies of the skin, (so very pernicious to the healthy growth of the Hair,) and imparts to it that clean, soft and vivifying appearance so de-sirable at all times, and the greatest desideratum o the toilet, whilst from its cooling and invigorating properties it is equally indispensable to the nursery as the toilet.
